Who is AAGLA?

The Apartment Association of Greater Los Angeles (AAGLA) is a trade association and government advocate serving rental housing providers throughout Southern California since 1917. Today, our association's members are over 10,000 strong and own or manage more than 350,000 rental units. Our diverse group of members consist of both rental housing providers and residential property management professionals, developers and other real estate professionals, and vendors that serve rental housing businesses.

What Members Are Saying

"The city and state don't send out comprehensive updates regarding these changes. AAGLA is in a position of authority to assist people like me! And to all the folks who own rental housing property but aren't yet members of the Association, you are setting yourself up for failure."
